

The proposed rule changes must be made public first, and then the public must be allowed to comment upon them. You are supposed to serve the public's interest. What is the rush?

Delay this decision until the public has had an adequate chance to comment.